

ARTWORKS POSTING POLICY

RISD has made this site available to allow employers to communicate directly with RISD students and alumni about potential job opportunities in art and design. The information on this site about these opportunities is provided by the employers, not by RISD. RISD has not screened the employers or opportunities that are listed here, and the listings should not be viewed as an endorsement of them by RISD.

Students and alumni who are interested in the listed opportunities rely on the information provided at their own risk and should therefore investigate those opportunities to their satisfaction before making any commitments.

All parties using this site must abide by all applicable federal, state, and local laws and regulations and RISD policies prohibiting discrimination in employment and must comply with all other laws and regulations applicable to their use.

RISD reserves the right to deny placement in or remove from this site any listing for any reason that RISD in its sole discretion deems appropriate, including, but not limited to, a determination by RISD that the opportunity is not sufficiently related to art or design, that the employer has not complied with these policies, or that the listing is otherwise inappropriate or unsuitable.

RISD reserves the right to modify or eliminate this site and to amend these policies at any time.
